

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to the use of short-chain peptides for the protection of the skin from hair-treatment agents, and particularly for the protection of the scalp from dyes or colorants.